CHARGES

JENNINGS: The Anti-Defamation League charged today that a convicted Nazi war criminal now living in Austria was employed by American intelligence from 1946 to 1955. He is Robert Jan Verblan, who was convicted in absentia by a Belgian court of mass murder as well as the torture of two American pilots in World War II. The Anti-Defamation League says U.S. officials were aware of Verblan's background when they employed him.
